

Dr Ralf Höcherl

Business Support

Business Director

Diplom-Kaufmann (Business Administration)

Ralf Höcherl has been with Maiwald since 2016. He has sole responsibility for the firm's commercial activities. Working together with the heads of the various departments, Ralf is currently working on the development of a Service Center consolidating the areas of accounting, controlling, human resources and IT. His work is aimed at optimizing the firm's internal processes and procedures through integrating database systems and application software. Ralf is a passionate business economist. Drawing on many years of experience in consultancy and management in the industrial sector, and with proven expertise in accounting and controlling, he has mastered the tools needed for successful strategic management and efficient operational procedures. Ralf firmly believes that good results are invariably the result of good teamwork. Under his leadership, the Maiwald team endeavours to make each day a bit better than the day before.
